

SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1834.

NINTH DISTRICT.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR CONGRESS.
DR. DANIEL THURBER.

On Monday next another trial will take place in this District, to elect a candidate to Congress. The pre-eminent merits of Dr. THURBER are so well known, and so universally acknowledged, that it is unnecessary for us to allude to them more particularly. We hope that the approaching contest will prove that the Democrats of No. 9, duly appreciate them. By a vigorous effort they may redeem their District from Aristocratic control.

The President's Conversations.—The committees sent by the "distress" politicians and "famine" manufacturers of New York and Philadelphia, have given versions of their conversations with the President on the subject of their mission. Their conversations are very admirably reported in the real Jack Downing style, which seems to be the fashionable literary standard with the politicians of the National Republican school—and we must admit that they are admirably adapted to their mind and intelligence. Did it occur to the Nationals, that they only deceive themselves by such pitiful caricatures and misrepresentations? Public opinion is as strong now in favor of General Jackson, as it was at the time of his election, when he received 219 out of the 288 electoral votes. The political reputation of the present dominant party in Massachusetts, is of such a kind, and so well established in the minds of the people of this country, that their opposition to Gen. Jackson is the greatest favor they can bestow on him—and the severest blow he has ever received, was the approval of his proclamation by the Nationals of this State.

We repeat, none but the opposition will be deceived by these tales. There have been no "re-actions" adverse to Gen. Jackson. He is growing more and more popular, as his measures and motives become better understood.

"Mr Simpson, editor of the Philadelphia National Banner, is for open war, rebellion, or revolution. He advises the people, if no relief comes, to organize their forces, and enrol themselves into companies, battalions and regiments—then meet again and petition till the doors of the President's House 'crack' with their voices, 'and the Halls of Congress smoke with the fire' of their resolutions. If this does not prevail, 'then strike for liberty.'"

This Simpson is the brave fellow who trembled so when Mr Pinckney, of Baltimore, called him to an account for some abusive remarks, that he was unable to stand still for a week afterwards.

The Resolves in favor of Re-chartering the U. S. Bank, and deprecating the removal of the Deposits, were passed yesterday in the House of Representatives, by a vote of 307 to 125. Upon a previous motion to divide the Resolutions, for the purpose of leaving out the one censuring the conduct of the President, the vote was 133 to 132. So it appears that after all the boasting of the Nationals, they were able to carry a Resolution censuring the conduct of the President by only one majority.

It is rumored that the "Silver Greys" have received orders from headquarters to hold themselves in readiness for immediate action at the raising of the "five striped" flag. A large number of these "oriflammes" of legitimacy, it is said, have been so long preserved in the vaults of the United States Bank that they have become quite yellow. The "Old Guard" having become superannuated, it was thought necessary to call upon their "father's sons" to turn out. This title is to be used hereafter to distinguish them from the "mechanical rabble."

The New Bedford Mercury copies our statement, that the names of those who declined signing their "distress memorial" were ordered to be reported to their meeting,—and does not deny its correctness. We thought they would not, because our statement was true. Really such people are truly worthy objects of sympathy. We recommend them to the tender mercies of the British Bank.

The New Bedford Courier says that the great body of "the Workingmen are not to be galled by mere words." We predicted the other day, that the editors of the Courier would find this out, but we did not expect that they would realize it so soon.

Will the Atlas have the kindness to mention the names of the three speakers at the Young Men's Meeting who "were originally Jackson men?" We know of but one, Mr Williams, and have some curiosity to be acquainted with the other two.

Great and Small Things.—A revolution is expected in Canada.—Grasshoppers have appeared in New York.—Don Pedro is losing ground in Portugal.—King Otho is as ugly as ever.—Ireland is in great distress.—King William will not admit black stocks to his Drawing Rooms.—The Emperor of Russia intends to help himself to Turkey.—The Porte has been whipping the feet of the English Consul.—The Bank people talk of a "clashing of arms."—Money is a little easier.—Power had a bumper of a benefit last evening at the Tremont.—The March number of the N. E. Magazine has an excellent Lithographic likeness of Jacob Kuha.—The Transcript and Atlas have frightened Com. Elliot most severely.—Major Jack Downing has resigned his commission, and is succeeding in the command of the Downingville Militia, by Major Haughton.—There has been an earthquake in Pennsylvania.—A speech has been made by G. W. Gordon, of Boston.—A Ruination Meeting has been held at the Old Common Council Room.—Resolutions have been seconded by Mr John O. Sargent, and the brother of Pickle Emmons died suddenly!

POLICE COURT.

(Friday.)

The effects of Lying, and the power of Truth.—no very startling caption, but, nevertheless, an appropriate one.—Caleb L. Bradley and William Nichols were arraigned upon a complaint charging them with knowingly passing, on Wednesday forenoon, a counterfeit $10 bill, of the United States Bank, dated July 27, 1831, to one Aaron Sargent, a boy in the employ of Mr Ezekiel Pitman, tailor, 12 Congress street. Bradley and Nichols entered the store together, and Bradley bought a frock coat of the boy, and paid him $17, among which money was the abovementioned counterfeit; to make the change right Nichols lent Bradley a quarter of a dollar, and appeared to be acting in concert with him.

When Mr Pitman came in, he discovered the bill to be a counterfeit, and immediately took the boy on an exploring expedition, for the purpose of finding the young men whom he had taken it from. After performing the circuit of auction-rooms, and rum-traps, they went into a tavern in Elm street, where the boy recognised Nichols, who, however, made off, by a passage in the rear; but they again discovered him in the street, and he appeared to be aware that he was watched—looked back occasionally, passed up one street and down another, without any apparent object, till he halted at an apothecary's in Leverett street, where he called for snuff. Constable Holden was then sent for, and when N. was informed why he was arrested, he said—"I expected this; for I thought Bradley was a rogue, but I don't know his name, nor where he puts up. I never saw him before yesterday." Mr Holden, unwilling to disappoint Nichols' "expectations," committed him. His disclaimer of all knowledge of Bradley carried falsehood upon the face of it. He denied emphatically, any knowledge where Bradley put up. A description of Bradley's dress and person was freely circulated, and he was finally discovered in the Warren Theatre by John Barker, identified by the boy, and arrested by Holden. He said he had known Nichols about 10 days—saw him first in Lowell, and put up at the same house with him in this city.

When the little boy testified, Bradley said he had stated the transaction truly—and further—"I have no other counsel but my innocence; and I can take my oath, before God and man, that I did not know that the bill was counterfeit. I have been free but a little while, and it is a devilish bad scrape for me to get into." Holden here remarked, "Bradley has told me the truth, in every item—I have found every thing just exactly as he said." He also explained in a reasonable manner how the money might have come into his possession. The counsel for the prosecution was strongly impressed with Bradley's innocence; but Nichols' equivocal movements, singular exclamation, that he 'expected to be arrested,' and false statement about his knowledge where Bradley might be found, were calculated to throw the strongest suspicion over the whole transaction. Bradley, however, suggested an explanation, which was not altogether improbable, as follows:—"Nichols saw that I had plenty of money, and perhaps, suspected, as I was young, I might have been up to some shine to get it; and when they got him, he might think he might be able to get clear himself, without getting me into a scrape."

Had Nichols given the necessary explanation at first, no prosecution would have taken place, as Bradley was prepared, the moment he was apprised that the bill was counterfeit, to settle fairly. In this stage of the examination, the counsel for the government intimated that the complainant was prepared to withdraw his complaint; but the court inclined to the opinion that there was not satisfactory evidence that Bradley passed the bill knowingly, and discharged both prisoners. The court was undoubtedly influenced, in this decision, by the perfect frankness and truth of Bradley's explanations, and gave him some gentle admonition respecting the passing of bills for the future.

The Wheel of Fortune.—John Simpson, was seen to help himself to a pair of leather-lined India rubbers, from the window of Mr Ebenezer Vose's shoe-store. His movements were carefully noted by a lady, and her "curiosity" was truly "fatal" to poor Simpson, whose countenance seemed somewhat familiar to us. The lady started a handcartman after him, who brought him back to the store, where Simpson averred that he only took them to compare with another pair. The officer who arrested him, stated that he kept an unlicensed bar, in Canal street, and patronised it liberally himself. The mention of Canal street, threw new light on the subject. But can it be possible that the downcast, timid, trembling, faltering, fibbing, stammering prisoner, is the same identical consequential chap, who, exactly two months ago, mounted the complainant's stand, with head erect, and with fire in each eye, firmness in his tone, and precision in language, swore that his, said John Simpson's grocery store, was feloniously broken open and entered by one of Uncle Sam's larks, who was thereupon convicted? Even so. Yes, in the short space of 60 days he had changed his principles, and taken his seat on the opposition benches, where his entire map was blasted and mildewed, by the malaria of the location. The Court, considering the disgrace of being in the opposition as some punishment, only fined him $1.00 and costs.—Committed.

Removing the Deposits.—Frederic Daniels, a Dane, was surprised between 8 and 9 o'clock, on Thursday night, in the act of tapping a harness-cask, on the deck of the schr. Reaper, and bagging some salt junk. Daniels, in his trepidation to escape detection, made a "tumble down Dick," plump into the Dock mud. Fortunately for him the tide was low, or he would have been converted into pickled pork, before day-light. As it was, by dint of pulling, hauling, splashing, crawling, and climbing, the captain and others made out to get him up on to the wharf, deeply laden with the accumulated treasures, and impregnated with the concentrated effluvia of the "receptacle of things lost." The worthy captain was of opinion that the black bath and slimy anointing that Daniels received in the "nest of hoarded sweets," was a sufficient punishment for his attack on the beef barrel, but others, more alive to the honor of the Commonwealth, urged his arrest.—He admitted "that things looked a little suspicious." The Court was of the same opinion, and upon the complaint charging him with being a pilferer, sentenced him to 20 days imprisonment. He keeps a cellar in Broad street, and probably felt an "extraordinary pressure," and knowing that "free ships made free goods," he resorted to the above expedient to raise a dinner for his boarders.

Apology.—We beg pardon of daddy Lindsey, of the New Bedford Gazette, for telling the story about the trading propensities of the New Bedford boys, as we learn that the two gifted geniuses referred to, were nearly allied to his own flesh and bones.

There is every probability that a rupture will soon take place between Canada and the mother country.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Mr Greene.—Two writers in your paper of yesterday object to the suggestions made by me, relative to the proper mode of counting votes. The first, "One of the People," dogmatically asserts that in the remarks I submitted, "expediency is opposed to the constitution." Now the whole tenor of my remarks, went to show that the Senatorial mode was constitutional and most equitable.

"One of the People" says every vote deposited represents a voter. This position is not disputed. The question is Shall a vote represent more than it purports to?

If there be one hundred voters, and two candidates are to be chosen, and they are voted for separately, and A has 51 votes and C 49 votes, A is chosen, and in the next ballot, although the same persons are present and only 96 persons choose to vote, B has 48 votes and D 40 votes, the whole number is 88, 45 necessary to choice, B is of course chosen.

I cannot see why, with the same result on a general ticket, the same decision would not be "constitutional."

Another writer with the signature of "Justus," observes "that your correspondent supposes a case in which 9 is the whole number of votes, and 4 candidates, and arranges them so as to give A 5, B 2, C 5, D 5, E 2, F 2, G 2, H 1," and concludes with remarking that "only A, C and D are chosen."

As this is the whole ground upon which "Justus" objects to my views and being altogether a mistake on his part, it is of course untenable.

The error of "Justus" is in not reading correctly my supposed case. He mistook the estimate 4 for E F G H for I to the same candidates. I would say nothing further in reply to "Justus," than as your type was rather small, and his optics probably rather dim, he had better put on his spectacles and reperuse my remarks. CIVIS.

General Lafayette.—The following letter from Paris, giving some account of the U. S. Bank, and of President Jackson, we copy from the Baltimore Republican. The friends of the veteran General in this country will read it with interest.—Gazette.

Paris, Nov. 20, 1833.—Yesterday I had the pleasure of passing several hours with the illustrious LAFAYETTE at one of his crowded soirées. There were several Americans in the saloon. I was the only Baltimorean present, and as I had but a slight acquaintance with my fellow-countrymen, I chose to pass most of my time near the great and good man. Our conversation of course turned principally upon American affairs. I assure you that his admiration for our President is unbounded.—The following were, as nearly as I can recollect, his words on this subject: "General Jackson is the very man fitted for the present crisis. His stern and uncompromising republicanism and high sense of honor, will prove the best security for our admirable institutions,—(for he calls every thing American his own.) For a long time I saw with pain the advances of an aristocratic moneyed institution, which threatened to cast a poisonous mildew over our precious liberties. They would have rendered our fair country a passive instrument in their hands, in which case freedom would have vanished from among us. Gen. Jackson possesses the honesty of a Regulus, the patriotism of Washington, the firmness of a Timoleon,—in fact I am unacquainted with any character in ancient or modern history, which combines so much excellence with so few of the errors of humanity."

An English writer suggests a plan of naturalizing the fire-fly, which abounds not only in America but in the Vaudois of Piedmont.—The people of the Vaudois, he suggests, would deliver any number of these insects in Paris, at ten shillings a dozen, in boxes properly contrived, in every stage of their existence, and even in the egg, should that be desired; and that if twenty dozen were turned out in different parts of England, there could not remain a doubt, that, in a few years, they would be common through the country, to the great embellishment of English summer evenings.—Jour. of Com.

Stereotype Printing.—From a report published by the Dutch government, it appears that this ingenious art was invented so long ago as the year 1700, by John Muller, minister of the German reformed church at Leyden. His first method was that of soldering the types together after the page was composed; but afterwards he had plates cast from a plaster of Paris, or metal mould, as done at this day. He and his son published various works printed in this manner. It is extraordinary that the art was afterwards suffered to fall into oblivion, and was re-invented a century later.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

In Senate.—Feb. 28.—Bills passed to be enacted, to incorporate the Boston and Gloucester Granite Co.—the proprietors of the Western Meeting House in Scituate—the Worcester "Y. States the jurisdiction of Nix's Mate—in addition to an act to incorporate the 1st U. Society in Duxbury—concerning the appointment of Engine men.

The bill to terminate the powers of the Grand Lodge, was read again and the question being on its passage to be engrossed, it was moved to re-commit the bill with amendatory instructions, which motion was negatived. The question was then taken on the passage of the bill to be engrossed, which was decided in the affirmative.

A bill was reported in addition to regulate the jurisdictions and proceedings of Courts of Probate.

S. Supreme Court.

In the House, a special committee was appointed to inquire into the expediency of passing a law, extending the limits of common gaols, so that poor debtors confined therein, can, as Christians, enjoy the common privileges of public worship, and as men, have some opportunity of procuring for themselves and their suffering families the necessities of life.

A bill was reported to authorise the Mayor and Aldermen of Boston to extend Front St.—also a bill concerning the islands and beaches in Boston Harbor.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the resolves relating to the currency and to the removal of the depositors from the U. S. Bank—and the question being stated on passing the same, it was decided in the affirmative by yeas and nays—307 to 125.

Coal mine at Eastport.—We have recently understood that a mine of Coal has been discovered at Eastport, and is likely to yield a handsome profit to those who are about to explore it. People who are good judges of minerals have given their opinion that it was the real coal. Capt. John Clark, on whose land it is, has given a lease of the same on condition that 5 per cent. of all the profit be given him—and several enterprising citizens of that place have received shares in it of $20 to the amount of $400, and the work will be commenced forthwith.—St. Croix Cour.

A piece entitled "Six Degrees of Crime," was in January brought out at one of the Theatres in Boston, and had a "run" which we believe no other American piece has ever enjoyed. It was played to full houses, for sixteen successive nights. We observe that the managers are making arrangements to bring out the same piece at the Arch street Theatre, under the immediate direction of its author, a gentleman whose polished pen has contributed much to the polite literature of the day.—*Philad. LARGE DISCOUNTS—FOR CASH.

The subscribers, believing the present system of credit injurious to both the buyer and seller, and wishing to change the same so far as practicable, have decided to commence a Cash Business—and will after this date discount to their former prices 8 per cent for cash—thereby giving those who are in the habit of cashing their bills, some real advantage, and also holds out to others an inducement to adopt the same course.
It is the frequent complaint of those who settle their bills promptly, that they "pay for others' delinquencies." As this system will obviate all such causes of complaint, they trust it will meet the approbation of their customers, and all those who may hereafter become such. GOODRICH & H

Abbott, Esq., whose certificate is bearing the following certificate:

"This is to certify that one of the above described Double Safes, which I purchased of the Messrs S. A. & W. G. Pierce, was in my office in this town last evening was burned on the 2d day of November last—the building was of two stories, wooden, and large. The burning was from the second story into the cellar, and was exposed to an intense heat for near three hours. It was for a long time literally red-hot, and it contained all the account books, notes and papers, that were in my office; and would have been in the least degree burnt or injured if not for the safe."

JOHN S. ABBOTT.

The above Chest, and some of the papers which were destroyed at the time of the fire, are now at the Agent's Store, corner of Essex and Washington streets, for the inspection of all or corporation who are considering purchasing Safes for the protection of their books and papers, and they will be perfectly satisfied that Gaylor's Double Safes are what they are represented to be—Fire-Proof; and they will be still further satisfied that no other but the Double Safe would stand a severe trial.

The Double Safes are a patent article, and can be legally purchased in this city of S. A. & W. PIERCE, who are his authorized Agents.

ORIENTAL SHAVING SOAP.—A new and important discovery!! This article is justly celebrated for its peculiar properties in rendering the soap soft and easy to cut. It supercedes the process of scouring of its liquid form, making the shaving easier and quicker. The article needs no recommendation but one simple trial, which will prove its merits.

Drops three drops into a cup, wet your face in warm water and rub it, and it will produce a lather at five half minute which will not dry for hours compared by Stephen Thayer & Co. — [signed] Samuel Ansell, Sold by their Agent in Boston.
